study.net/books/fate_of_all_holy_places_of_palestine/An interesting development recently has emerged that points to a larger shift in Israeli policy toward the occupied West Bank - the Israeli minister of economic affairs Yair Lapid is proposing the establishment of economic zones that cover most of East Jerusalem. This plan may not actually affect the Israeli occupied West Bank at the moment (it's based on proposals submitted by the chief of Israel's Central Bank) but its purpose appears to be to give the Israeli government leverage in negotiations for Palestinian control of all the land that it controls and thus avoid a clash with any Palestinian leadership over Palestinian land.. Baba Khaled's family says the father is now being forced to flee the country because the government no longer supports him for work.

This plan is already being advocated by an Israeli nationalist political party that is already being led by one of the main architects of this plan. Yesh Atid is the second largest party in the Israeli parliament (the largest in the world) and in an election year they managed to gain nearly one third of the seats on the Israeli Knesset, the largest in the world and one of the two leading parties in the Israeli House of Representatives. Yesh Atid's policy is to "secure" Jewish settlements with policies that include an end to the right of return to those Jews who already live in Israel. In order to secure Jewish settlements with these policies, Lapid and Yair Lapid are proposing an illegal "security area" around East Jerusalem, called Qalandia, stretching from Ma'ale Adumim (east) to the southern borders of East Jerusalem.. These would be areas that would be seized by the Israeli army in an eventual military operation, such as in the case of Sderot. Since the end of the Second World War, the Israeli government has built up thousands of settlements in East Jerusalem, and in recent years they have been expanding or extending them eastward as their control of the West Bank has waned or been restricted.m Marwa Jalabil..
